two kinds answer key: Retrieval from Semantic Memory W. Noordman-Vonk, 2013-03-07 The area of concern to Dr. Wietske Noordman~Vonk has been variously seen as an aspect of long-term memory [F. 1], secondary memory [F. 2], memory without record [F. 3], and semantic memory [F. 4], the latter term being the one preferred by Dr. Noordman-Vonk herself. This proliferation of terminology is not an entirely trivial matter, for although the expressions clearly overlap in range, they do draw attention to different features of the phenomena under consideration. The work reported here is concerned with the form of representation and manipulation of our knowledge that, for example, a dog is an animal, or that mothers and daughters are parents and children. To put it more generally, the experiments attempt to elucidate the psychological processes involved in the~emantics of class-inclusion and, most importantly, to extend the explanatory principles there invoked to a new domain, that of kinship relations. Clearly, the connections between ant and insect, or flower and plant have been known to us - as adults - for some considerable period of time; in the absence of brain injury or degeneration we are unlikely to forget that fathers and sons are kin of the same sex. We may therefore - pretheoretically - distinguish between retrieval of such knowledge and retrieval of a rapidly fading sequence of random numbers that we are asked to recall after a single presentation. It is in this sense that the current work is concerned with long-term and not short-term memory.

The book addresses the rise of the, "mindfulness movement", and the core concerns behind the critiques of the growing popularity of mindfulness. It covers a range of dichotomies, such as traditional versus modern, religious versus secular, and commodification versus critical thought and probes beyond the East/West binary to larger questions of economics, philosophy, ethics, and, ultimately, meaning. Featured topics include: A compilation of Buddhist meditative practices. Selling mindfulness and the marketing of mindful products. A meta-critique of mindfulness critiques - from McMindfulness to critical mindfulness Mindfulness-based interventions in clinical psychology and neuroscience. Corporate mindfulness and usage in the workplace. Community-engaged mindfulness and its role in social justice.
